Father Elliott doubtless will return to Washington this evening. There is said to be a probability that the interment will take place in San Francisco, Father Doyle's old home.

Trip West Advised.

After visiting the Paulist headquarters in New York last week Father Doyle announced that the leaders there had advised him, on account of ill health brought on by suffering with his eyes, that he should take a trip to California. He consented and left Washington for San Francisco Friday, one week ago. At that time it was noted that he seemed to be especially nervous.

At both Chicago and Flagstaff, Ariz, en route to the coast, Father Doyle mail-ed postcard remembrances to friends in Washington, and they were expecting him to return here late in September, as he had planned, much improved in health and ready for the work of the fall and winter. It is expected, however, that the long trip to the coast proved too much for his enfeebled condition, and brought on an attack of nervous prostration to which he succumbed. The clergyman was fifty-six years old, and had been a member of the Congregation of St. Paul for about thirty-three years. His early religious life was spent under the influence of the early Paulists and founders of the congregation, Fathers Hecker and Hewitt, and it is declared that the whole trend of Father Doyle's labors in his missions to non-Catholics showed the result of these early associa-

Made Many Friends.

Hundreds of members of Protestant churches of Washington who came in contact with Father Doyle during his work in this city, it is pointed out, became deeply attached to him on account of the cordial greeting he always held out to them in their meetings. "He was a splendid speaker and an in defatigible worker." a leading Protestant said today, "and has left in the Apostolic Mission House at Brookland, of which he was the founder, an appropriate monument to his memory. He was a man of genial personality and enjoyed a wide popularity among non-Catholics as well as those of his own faith. His prayer was ever that the church might be one, and his every effort was to bring Roman Catholics and Protestants to the thought that they are brothers in Christ and that they should find it in themselves to work together along many lines for civic advancement, and in this way draw closer toward a final union of fellowship." During his work at the Apostolic Mission House Father Doyle, it is declared, was never known to refuse an invitation to preach anywhere, and his greeting to the man of lowly estate was every bit as cordial as that to the man of great wealth and station.

Always Ready to Aid.

No matter how poor the church, it is said, or how small, the congregation, Father Doyle was ever ready to put forth his best effort for its advancement whenever called upon tion of Lighting Device. Emily G. Morgan, executrix of the estate of the late Robert W. Morgan of Bronxville, N. Y., has filed a petition in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia against Edward M. Moore, commissioner of patents. The plaintiff, who is a resident of Yonkers, N. Y., through her attorneys, F. W. Wright of New York and A. V. Cushman of this city, asks the court for a decree howing that Robert W. Morgan was the center of a certain "incandescent lamp curing means" and to compel the com-hissioner of patents to grant her a patent on the device. It is declared in the petition that Mr. Morgan invented the device by which means an incandescent lamp can be locked in its socket and not removed except by a special key. She declares several claims were rejected and others allowed by the patent office. An appeal was taken to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, which affirmed the decision of the commissioner of patents. She declares the claims are patentable and are novel and therefore a patent should be granted for the device.
